The reduction in allocation of funds for JRY is due to the resource constraints.

(c) JRY has been reviewed from time to time in the light of implementation problems observed during the course of its constant monitoring and supervision. The Government of India has also taken up the work Concurrent Evaluation of Jawahar Rozgar Yojana (JRY) through Independent institutions organisations to assess its impact in the rural areas in relation to stated objectives of the programme. In the Concurrent Evaluation, which has already been launched, the impact of programme from the point of view of providing employment has also been included for study.

(d) to (f) The Government is implementing a scheme of Training of Rural Youth for Self-Employment (TRYSEM) which is being implemented as a component of IRDP. It has also been decided to earmark 3% resources of the programme for physically handicapped persons who are capable of taking up training under TRYSEM scheme and subsequently being self-employed.

The coverage of training under TRYSEM has been stepped up from the level of about 2·12 lakhs (in 1989-90) to 4·25 lakhs youth to be trained during 1991-92. The performance of TRYSEM scheme during 1990-91 and 1991-92 is given in statement.
